Dear Mr. Myers,

In light of Mr. Antion's letter kicking me out of ABC classes and functions without so much as the courtesy of any communication inquiring WHY I had been absent, it seems clear what the attitude of this administration toward students it doesn't control is.

I understand and did not expect to graduate with the class, given my absences. This was a matter that I'd hoped to discuss with you upon my return tomorrow, along with the MP3's for my husband who is also considered a student of ABC - and our tuition paid for both of us, and he was to be a beneficiary of the classes, which we were to receive in MP3.

In addition, I had been working with Corey Gerrano to share notes - as well as having shared other items to help ABC students which I must now unfortunately reclaim since we have no reason to trust this administration to act with any civility.

I don't mind being kicked out.

What I do mind is the fact that no one even bothered to contact me to ask why I wasn't there or to ask what they could to help. The actions do not match the criteria of an administration that says they want to help and care for people. The actions match an administration that is more concerned with the imposition of it's will than seeking to work with others in a productive manner going forward.

However, Mr. Antion saw fit to take matters into his own hands and write a letter and since, as I learned from Mr. McCrady, Mr. Antion answers to no one now that Mr. Luker is dead, it seems apparent that we can merely expect the lack of courtesy if not downright lawlessness in your group to increase.

I have a mug at your offices, a hard drive for which I was asked, as well as the items that were delivered per Lorena's request to help with bedding arrangements for your group's students.

I expect an answer in writing regarding my husband's access to audio for the program's classes for which we've paid; and I expect the return of all of the items I have at your offices and those which we have loaned to ABC people to be returned to me when I come to classes tomorrow.

Thanks!

Kind regards,
Deborah
